Dorothy Day was a person of contradictions: activist and contemplative, political radical and a theological conservative. Intending to found a newspaper, The Catholic Worker, she ended up founding a movement. The most important monuments to her are the over 200 houses of hospitality that stretch from San Francisco to Amsterdam. Seeking not only to provide hospitality to the homeless as “guests” during the Depression of the 1930s but to help build a nonviolent society which would not treat people as throw-aways, she was arrested again and again in protest actions.

Jim Forest, worked with Dorothy Day during the last 20 years of her life. He is the author of a new and comprehensive biography of her, All is Grace. Jim helped start the Catholic Peace Fellowship in response to the Vietnam War and has worked with the Fellowship of Reconciliation, as well as his current role as International Secretary of the Orthodox Peace Fellowship. Jim will be leading a day of reflection hosted at the community where Dorothy Day made her retreats with Fr. John Hugo, a Pittsburgh diocesan priest.
